The announcement of the fest came at the annual SXSW Music Summit held on the campus of The University of Texas at Austin. This year, In The Mix will take place at SXSW's Austin Convention Center on Thursday, August 14 and Friday, August 15. The two-day, music-focused festival will offer emerging artists the rare opportunity to showcase their work and network with some of the country's most influential tastemakers. "This has been an incredible year for In The Mix and I'm thrilled to announce a second year. The success of last year's festival showed us that there is an incredible appetite for emerging artists, and in 2014 we will be aiming to create a true sonic experience for both festival-goers and artists," said In The Mix Festival co-founder, Ken Carroll. Calling itself "South By Southwest's Music Festival for Emerging Artists," In The Mix will take place August 14-15 at the Austin Convention Center. The fest will feature a diverse lineup of artists performing in four different music categories: New Music, New Vibe, Raw Power, and Lounge. All In The Mix artists will be confirmed in the coming days. In The Mix Festival will present some of the most exciting emerging acts, including Flying Lotus, Mr. Carmack, Deafheaven, Hudson Mohawke, Chiddy Bang, Hi-Q, Juan Pablo Copado, Noname, Nef the Pharaoh, Mr. Green Jeans, Mango, Rosalía, Mura Masa, and more. The festival will also feature a wide variety of programming that includes panel discussions, artist meet-and-greets, music classes, and an open mic session. "Our goal is to provide a unique music experience for emerging artists," Carroll added. �
